I tested and built my webpages while viewing the changes with Google Chrome, therefore, that would be our control expectation in the tests. I then tested afterwards in Opera and in Mozilla Firefox. I didn't notice a whole bunch of changes, I would assume this was helped with the CC Reset that was provided through the classes. The main difference was while using Mozilla Firefox, there was a thin border created around my "Submit form" button that wasn't intended to be there or visible in Opera or Chrome.